

CLAUDY[®] JONGSTRA

25 - 29 January 2012

Solo exhibition World Economic Forum, Davos, Switzerland

THE DAILY DAVOS

Davos World Economic Forum Begins With a Focus on Capitalism on the Brain

by Barbie Latza Nadeau Jan 25, 2012 7:38 AM EST

The World Economic Forum kicks off Wednesday with a sober speech by Angela Merkel, But there are plenty of other things on the agenda this year, including the environment, architecture, and arts and culture, ...

But it's not just the economy on the agenda in snowy Davos. On Wednesday, alternatives to the economy include a dynamic offering of topics from combating cybercrime to the realities of global sustainability. There is also an admirable focus on arts and culture this year, with daily offerings for leaders to learn how to stimulate creative work environments. To temper the gloom, an impressive exhibit is on display in the Congress Center called "Traditions in Contemporary Art" with works by Massimo Lunardon, Jan De Vliegheer, Claudy Jongstra, Drue Kataoka, and Michael Wolf.

N Newsweek

Capitalism on Trial at Davos

To temper the gloom, an impressive exhibit is on display in the Congress Center called "Traditions in Contemporary Art" with works by Massimo Lunardon, Jan De Vliegheer, Claudy Jongstra, Drue Kataoka, Michael Wolf and Azerbaijan. Participants at the...